

Call for Book Authors and Editors

Since 2005, The American Ceramic Society (ACerS) and John Wiley & Sons have teamed up as publishing partners, bringing together ACerS 110 years of experience of serving ceramics students and professionals with Wiley's 200 plus years of publishing expertise. A main goal of the partnership is to ensure that ACerS members and the larger international ceramics community can access the highest quality content available, enabling professionals to conduct research, teach, and make advancements in their fields.

ACerS-Wiley is currently seeking new authors or volume editors for textbooks, handbooks, or reference books on ceramics and ceramics-related topics. Examples of book topics include, and are not limited to: oxides, non-oxides, composites, environmental and energy issues; fuel cells; ceramic armor; nanotechnology; glass and optical materials; electronic/functional ceramic technology and applications; advanced ceramic materials; bioceramics; ceramic engineering, manufacturing, processing, and usage; ceramic design and properties; and health and safety issues. Authors and editors of new, original books receive royalties on worldwide sales of their books, while editors of proceedings volumes receive complimentary copies of their books. In addition, all authors and editors are entitled to a discount on Wiley books.

If you are an interested author or editor, or simply have an idea that you wish to share, please contact:

Anita Lekhwani

Senior Acquisitions Editor
John Wiley and Sons, Inc.
111 River Street
Hoboken, NJ 07030-5774
Tel: 201-748-7740
Fax: 201-748-8888
E-mail: alekhwan@wiley.com

Greg Geiger

Technical Content Manager
The American Ceramic Society
600 N. Cleveland Ave., Suite 210
Westerville, Ohio 43082
Tel: 614-794-5858
Fax: 614-794-5882
E-mail: ggeiger@ceramics.org

 WILEY-BLACKWELL

The American Ceramic Society
www.ceramics.org
