What is PCSA?
The President’s Council of Student Advisors (PCSA) is the student-led committee of The American Ceramic Society (ACerS) composed of ceramic and glass-focused students from around the world. New and returning delegates gather in October, the weekend prior to MS&T, for the PCSA annual business meeting. All delegates choose to serve on one of our committees for the next year. Delegates establish new goals for the upcoming year, discuss committee plans, and reassess progress made over the previous year.

What are the five PCSA committees?
- Programming
- Communications
- Recruitment
- Outreach
- External Partnerships

What are the goals of PCSA?
- Coordinate student-focused ceramic and glass programming at technical meetings.
- Develop and implement ceramic and glass-focused outreach activities.
- Facilitate industry-student relations.
- Promote ceramic and glass science and engineering at the university and local levels.
- Provide a way for students to become actively engaged as leaders in the ceramic and glass materials community.

Why does it help to be a PCSA Delegate?
- Network with industry leaders
- Build your resume
- Develop leadership and professional opportunities
- Serve the next generation of ceramic/glass professionals
- Promote awareness of ceramic and glass science to the general public

What does it take to be a PCSA Delegate?
- A strong interest in ceramics/glass
- Leadership qualities
- Reliability and strong drive

GRADUATE AND UNDERGRADUATE STUDENTS ARE ENCOURAGED TO APPLY!
